WEDNESDAY, September 5, 1750.

LISBON, April 11. O. S.

OUR treaty with Spain is not yet made public, but enough hath tranſpired to alarm the nation. All the hopes we had conceiv'd of obtaining permiſſion to ſend an annual ſhip to Buenos Ayres, as an equivalent for the loſs of the town of Sacrament, are vaniſhed; for we are now certainly informed, that of the thirty ſix articles, which compoſed the treaty, there is not a ſingle one to the advantage of Portugal. The indemnification which Spain gives us, is confined to ſtrong proteſtations of friendſhip, and that is all; for the large tract of deſart land, which that court cedes to us on the banks of the Amazon river, as far as the river Madeira, will not ſtop up the way, which is now open to the Spaniards to poſſeſs themſelves of our gold mines, whenever they would make war on us. We are told, indeed, that it contains mines of gold richer and more abundant, than any we have yet wrought; but we believe nothing of it. Our trade trembles at the thought of the bankruptcies which the ceſſion of the town of Sacrament will occaſion in the king's dominions in America; and the farmers of the cuſtoms wait only till the treaty be publiſhed, to demand permiſſion of his majeſty to reſign. A few copies of it have been printed, to ſend to the governors in that country, that they may get every thing ready againſt the time appointed for putting it in execution.

Venice, May 20. According to our advices from Conſtantinople, the grand Segnior, notwithſtanding the ſollicitations of the miniſters of certain courts, ſeems determined to have no concern in the affairs of the North, eſpecially as the porte is not yet quite ſecure on the ſide of Perſia, whoſe ambaſſador has lately talked in a very high ſtrain, and ſtarted freſh difficulties about the renewal of the treaty of alliance and friendſhip which he came to negotiate between the two empires.

An extract of a letter from the Hague, May 22.

According to all our advices, the affairs of Europe ſeem to be in general very much embarraſſed. We have it from good hands, that the king of Spain, in conſideration of the marriage of his ſiſter with the duke of Savoy, has reſigned his pretenſions to the Milaneſe to the king of Sardinia. The miniſters of the court of Turin, at that of Vienna, have declared, that neither this marriage nor the ſurrender ſhall make any alteration in the friendſhip of the two courts, nor in any wiſe prejudice the treaties which have long ſubſiſted between them; but, notwithſtanding that, the court of Vienna cannot help ſhewing ſome diſguſt at it. The affair of Corſica, very much engages the attention of our politicians, which they ſeem to think could not be ſo long accommodating, if the reconciling the inhabitants of that kingdom to the government of the republic of Genoa were the only points aimed at, and pretend to aſſign a very different reaſon. In ſhort, they do not ſcruple to ſay, that the houſe of Bourbon is endeavouring to get that Iſland into its own power, whether don Philip has it or not. Time only can diſcover the truth of this important affair, as well as of ſeveral others relating to Italy.

From the Paris A-la Main, June 15.

We hear that when the king's commiſſaries went a few days ago to the general aſſembly of the clergy, warm debates aroſe about the twentieth penny, which the court intends to levy out of all church livings.

Dantzick, June 10. The price of corn, which was greatly riſen on account of vaſt quantities being bought up by the Ruſſian and Swediſh commiſſaries, begins now to fall, on the preſent appearance of a plentiful harveſt.

Leghorn, June 3. An Engliſh ſhip, called the Jupiter, is arrived here, and the maſter of her reports, that he fell in with a Barbary corſair off Meſſina, who obliged him to part with all the ammunition and proviſions he had on board; ſo that he was forced to make the beſt of his way to this port, in order to re-victual, and buy powder and ball.

Hague, June 21. A courier has paſſed through this place, going to Hanover with diſpatches from the lords regents of Great Britain. Thoſe diſpatches are relative to the advices lately receiv'd from Nova-Scotia; but tho' the Engliſh news papers are very circumſtantial on this head, it appears that the regents wait for more certain and poſitive intelligence of the fact and its true circumſtances.

Dublin, June 3. Several tradeſmen, of different occupations went from hence with the tranſports laſt week to Nova-Scotia; which tranſports have the beſt and largeſt accommodations on board for all the paſſengers that hath been known; each man, woman and child, being allowed two pounds of freſh meat a day, two pounds and a half of bread, two quarts of table beer, half a pint of rum, and other neceſſaries.

LONDON.

Copy of a letter from the Dey of Algiers to the honourable, Capt. Auguſtus Keppel, commander in chief of his majeſty's ſhips in the Mediterranean, in anſwer to one written by the ſaid commander to his highneſs, dated the 22d of January laſt at Gibraltar.

HAving received your letter by the xebeque, I have to let you know in anſwer. That one of the frigates being on a cruize met with five Engliſh veſſels, whoſe paſſes the captain was dubious were not good; he put three or four Moors on board each ſhip, in order to bring them to Algiers to be examined; and had taken a like number of Engliſhmen out of the ſaid ſhips; that, on his arrival here, I immediately found the Captain in a very great fault, which tended to embroil me with my cheſeſt and beſt friends, wherefore I immediately ſent the people to the conſul, and ſeized the Captain, and would have ſtrangled him, but for the interceſſions of the Mufti, and principal people of my court; but he never more ſhall ſerve me by ſea or land, nor never more ſet his foot at the Marine; wherefore as we are the beſt and oldeſt friends, I hope the king your maſter will look upon this accident as the action of a fool or a madman; and I ſhall take care nothing of that nature ſhall happen again, and that we may be better friends then ever.

May 17. We learn from Paris, that the Breſt ſquadron will be ready to put to ſea by the beginning of July. It is whiſper'd, that the laſt diſpatches from Pruſſia and the North are of very high importance; and that upon the anſwer given, the whole turn of affairs in thoſe parts will depend.

May 12. They write from Conſtantinople, that the preſent grand vizir reſembles few or none of his predeceſſors, and acts upon maxims hitherto unknown to the Turkiſh empire. He is reported to have gained the Seraglio intirely, and is labouring to fill all the great governments with his creatures. In his diſcourſe he magnifies upon all occaſions his affection for peace, and his reſolution to maintain it; but, at the ſame time, he cauſes a ſtrict inquiry to be made into military and naval affairs, and applies himſelf with great diligence to correct ſeveral abuſes that have crept into them. There is one point, however, in which he is particularly open; which is, in repreſenting to the foreign miniſters the reſolution of his ſublime highneſs to execute all his treaties punctually, and to have a conſtant attention to the application of his allies; which occaſions many ſpeculations.

May 15. On Sunday, about half an hour after twelve a clock, her royal highneſs the princeſs of Wales was ſafely delivered of a prince at Leiceſter-houſe.

It is ſtill talk'd that his majeſty and the king of Pruſſia will have an interview this ſummer.

We hear from Newcaſtle, that a great number of keelmen have returned to their work; and that the inhabitants of the ſaid place expected the whole affair would ſoon be amicably determined.

Letters from all parts of this kingdom and Ireland, confirm the great increaſe of our ſheep. The ſeaſons have been extremely favourable, we ſhall have a greater crop of wool this year than has ever been known, conſequently that rich commodity will come cheaper than for ſome years paſt, to the manufacturer, which, it is to be hoped, will enable our merchants to underſell our envious competitors the French at foreign markets.

Quere. As wool will certainly be in more plenty in Ireland as well as England this year, whether a more than ordinary watch will not be neceſſary to prevent its being ſent raw to France, particularly from the ſouth-weſt of Ireland, where they not only now ſend it raw, but quantities ſpun into yarn, for want of free trade, or proper encouragement to bring it to England.

Yeſterday the merchant ſhip Bethel, Capt. Alexander Roſs, maſter, fell down the river from the lower water gate, Deptford, having on board 1970 quarters of wheat, bound for Cadiz in Spain.

Sir D' Anvers Oſborn imbarks in a few days for Nova-Scotia, in order to pay the forces and ſettlers there.

May 26. Our correſpondent at Paris acquaints us, that by the arrival of a ſhip from Cayenne, they have advice of a formidable inſurrection of the Negroes in a neighbouring colony, and of a great ſpirit of tumult and ſedition in ſeveral parts of South-America, the particulars of which are not divulged. It is reported, that the deſign of ſending a ſquadron either to the Baltic or the Mediterranean, is laid aſide; that the intrigues, for bringing about a change in the preſent ſyſtem, are in a great meaſure defeated, and that the marquis de Puyſieux is in higher credit than ever, ſo that, notwithſtanding his indiſpoſition, there is now not ſo much as a whiſper of his reſigning.

Yeſterday was launched a buſs deſigned for the white-herring fiſhery. There are two buſſes belonging to the ſociety, that will proceed to Schetland from the river this year. The gentlemen have with great difficulty (notwithſtanding all the meaſures taken to prevent them) procured a buſs from Holland upon the model of which, theſe two are built; alſo 32 perſons bred in the Dutch ſervice, who are thoroughly expert in all parts of the white herring fiſhery, as well in the taking as curing the ſame. The nets were made at Poplar upon the Dutch patterns: They are very curious, each ſett (which is called a fleet) being near a mile in length and 48 feet in depth: There have been above 2000 hands employed in making nets for theſe two buſſes. There are eighteen Foreigners, expert in the fiſhery, ſent down to Southampton, to go on board two buſſes that are there fitting out for the ſociety, under the care of Richard Taunton Eſq; Theſe buſſes are to go to the rendezvous in September, at Campbell Town, to fiſh on the North-Weſt ſide of Britain. We do not hear that any private adventurers will fit out this year, moſt waiting to ſee the event of the experiment made by the ſociety's four buſſes.

We are aſſured, that the Dutch herring fiſhery is ſo conſiderable, that there are at leaſt 30,000 perſons employed in it.

May 31. They write from Marſeilles, that the workmen are obliged to double duty in the king's docks, in order to fit out thoſe men of war which are upon the ſtocks. They alſo write, that the credit of the bank of St. George has made a great noiſe, and that it was apprehended there will be an inſurrection at Genoa upon that account.

NEW YORK, Auguſt 6.

Laſt Tueſday arrived here the ſhip Hawk, Capt. Waynman, in 11 weeks from the coaſt of Africa; in whom came two men, late belonging to the ſnow Anne, Benjamin Clarke maſter, of Liverpool; which veſſel having arrived on that coaſt the beginning of November laſt, with 12 men, continued trading to the 14th of April; when they having 60 Negroes on board, and the moſt of their white men ſick, the Negroes ſecretly got to the powder and arms, and about 3 o'clock in the morning roſe upon the whites; and after wounding all of them very much, except two who hid themſelves, they run the veſſel aſhore a little to the Southward of Cape Lopez, and made their eſcape. The veſſel ſoon beat to pieces, and in attempting to get their boat out, one of the well men was drown'd; ſo that 'twas with much difficulty they got aſhore: The captain ſoon after landing expired of his wounds, and next day, ſix of them ſet out to travel for Magumba, to meet with ſome Engliſh veſſels, leaving five ſick of their wounds on the ſhore unable to go: ——After ſix days travelling, another of them fainting with his wounds, gave out, and they were obliged to leave him alſo; the remaining five got alive to Magumba, the 3d of May; where three of them got on board the Rider-Galley, Capt. Buſh, of Liverpool, bound for Amſterdam, tho' one of them was ſo bad that he was given over by the ſurgeon; and the other two got on board Capt. Waynman, as above; which laſt veſſel has alſo loſt ſix of her men by ſickneſs in the voyage. This ſhould be a caution of great care and vigilance to be uſed in that trade.

Saturday laſt arrived here Capt. Hill from Corſica, by whom we have the following extract of a letter, dated July 25.

"We have for theſe three weeks paſt had nothing done in our iſland but racking and executing a parcel of new Negroes, who had plotted to deſtroy all the Whites, and Creole Negroes in the iſland; which they began on a plantation belonging to the Weſt India company, where they cut off the head of one white man and ſeveral Negroes, and were marching to town armed; but, thank God, they were ſoon repulſed, taken, deſtroy'd and ſcatter'd by a party of ſoldiers, and a company of free Negroes, immediately ſent out againſt them. It is pretty well over at preſent."

PHILADELPHIA.

The following is an extract of a letter from Capt Richard I'on, (the perſon mentioned in this paper No 276) to a gentleman in this city, dated at Lewis-Town, July 12.

SIR,

"I ſhall now lay before you my unhappy caſe exactly as it was, without adding or diminiſhing one tittle, for I am very poſitive, things of this nature are always told to the greateſt diſadvantage, and often very far from truth. I ſail'd from Carolina the 14th ult. bound to Providence, and after being out about a fortnight I had got but a very little to the Southward, ſo I took up the fatal reſolution to bear away for Virginia; but meeting with a calm in the Gulph Stream, it carried me ſo far to the Northward, that I fetch'd but in with your Capes, where I met the wind at W. S. W. and ordered the veſſel about to go to the Southward for Virginia; but the men ſwore bloodily they would not go to Virginia, but would go to Philadelphia, upon which I ſtept upon the poop, took hold of the main ſheet, and endeavoured to put the helm to lee, but was prevented by one of the men who ſeiz'd me, and ſwore a bloody Oath that one of us ſhould go overboard, at the ſame time endeavoured to put his threats in execution, I then thought my life in danger, and diſengaged my ſelf from him, and there being a hand ſpike upon the poop, I ſnatch'd it up and told him to keep off and be quiet, but regardleſs of that, he flew furiouſly at me and as he was coming, I puſh'd at him with the hand-ſpike, which made him ſtagger backwards, the veſſel at the ſame time giving a roll, he tumbled overboard when immediately I threw the bite of the main-ſheet after him, but was prevented doing any more, being ſeiz'd by the other man who had well nigh pitch'd me ove board, but recovering myſelf, I grappled with him and endeavoured to throw him upon the main deck, but his furious obſtinacy put it out of my power to ſave him. A boy about 17 in the ſcuffle was I believe knock'd overboard; all this happened about 12 o'clock at night, about two leagues from the land, and all I believe in a minute. When reflection took place, my ſenſes were unfram'd, and anarchy and madneſs ſucceeded, I threw overboard my goods, ſtove two pipes of wine, deſtroy'd my papers, and quitted the veſſel twice in one day, and attempted to lay violent hands on my ſelf, but it pleaſed God to prevent me. Excuſe this long incoherent letter, and pray repreſent my caſe as it is inſerted."
